04/06/2018	127	MINUTE ENTRY. Teleconference held before the Honorable Nanette K. Laughrey on April 6, 2018, regarding a discovery dispute. Following oral argument concerning whether the notes of confidential therapy sessions conducted between one plaintiff and her next friend, a psychotherapist, should be produced notwithstanding Plaintiffs' objection on the basis of the psychotherapist–patient privilege, the Court ruled that (1) pursuant to statute and case law, the psychotherapist–patient privilege applies; (2) the privilege was not waived by the filing of this action; (3) to the extent that the notes contain relevant material, the probative value of such material would be minimal, and would be outweighed by the very serious harm that would befall the child if the material were disclosed; and (4) Plaintiffs' production of selected materials that were already available to Defendants did not waive the privilege. Should Defendants wish to further argue the issue of whether the State has a right, either contractually, as the party paying the therapist, or as the legal custodian of the child, to access the private information shared between the child and the therapist, they may file, on or before

		April 13, 2018, a brief on those issues not exceeding two pages. If Defendants submit such a brief, Plaintiffs may file within one week thereof a response not exceeding two pages. If Plaintiffs file such a response, Defendants may file within one week thereafter a reply not exceeding two–pages. Appearances: Sara Bartosz for Plaintiffs; Russ Keller for Defendants.
