I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. On August 15, 2007, the Secretary of Homeland Security issued a Final Rule that sought to change the nation’s human resource practices for all American businesses large and small. The Final Rule, which was to become effective on September 14, 2007, would require businesses to resolve so-called “no-match” letters from the Social Security Administration in 30 days, and if unable to do so, then employees are given an additional 63 days to do so or risk termination. The Secretary had announced that starting on September 4, “no-match” letters identifying approximately 8,000,000 employees would be sent by the Social Security Administration to 140,000 employers nation-wide. A “no-match” occurs whenever there is a discrepancy between an employee’s name and Social

1 Security Number (“SSN”) in the Social Security Administration (“SSA”) database. SSA, though, has 2 acknowledged that its database contains more than 17 million so-called no-matches. Many are due to 3 benign causes such as a change of name following marriage, a clerical error by the employee, 4 employer or SSA, use of multiple surnames, varied naming conventions or other reasons having 5 nothing to do with an employee’s immigration status. Given that the correlation between an 6 employee’s immigration status and an employer’s receipt of a no-match letter for that employee is 7 unknown or low, using the no-match letter as a tool to enforce immigration laws is wasteful, costly to 8 the business community, and an awkward attempt by the Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”) 9 to commandeer the Social Security retirement and disability systems to enforce the nation’s 10 immigration laws, all at the expense of innocent employers and employees.

11 2. The Secretary certified that this regulation, affecting virtually every business in the 12 United States, “would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small 13 entities,” including the nation’s 5,300 hospitals, more than 2,000 colleges and universities, and nearly 14 900,000 small business restaurants employing more than 11 million workers. 72 Fed. Reg. 45611, 15 45623 (Aug. 15, 2007). Accordingly, the Secretary refused to conduct a regulatory flexibility 16 analysis, as required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. See 5 U.S.C. § 601 et seq. This lawsuit seeks 17 an order declaring that the Final Rule is invalid (i) for want of a regulatory flexibility analysis, (ii) for 18 want of statutory authorization, (iii) for want of evidence in the preamble to the proposed or final rule 19 that a no-match letter reliably indicates an employee’s immigration status, and vacating the Final 20 Rule and enjoining its enforcement as detailed below.

21 II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

22 3. This court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to:

23 a. 28 U.S.C. § 1331, which confers original jurisdiction over all civil suits arising 24 under the Constitution and the laws of the United States, and 28 U.S.C. § 2201 (authorizing 25 declaratory relief), 5 U.S.C. § 601 et seq. (Regulatory Flexibility Act), and 5 U.S.C. § 701 et seq.
26 (judicial review provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act).

27 b. Venue is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e).

III. VENUE AND INTRA-DISTRICT ASSIGNMENT

2 4. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1391(e) because Plaintiff-3 Intervenor San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and Golden Gate Restaurant Association reside in 4 this judicial district.

5 5. Pursuant to Local Rule 3-2(d), an intra-district assignment to the San Francisco or 6 Oakland Division is proper because a substantial part of the events giving rise to the claims in this 7 action will occur in the County of San Francisco. Plaintiff-Intervenor San Francisco Chamber of 8 Commerce and Golden Gate Restaurant Association reside in the City and County of San Francisco, 9 and Defendant Social Security Administration maintains a Regional Office in San Francisco.

IV. PARTIES

A. Plaintiff-Intervenors

10 11
12 6. Plaintiff-Intervenor San Francisco Chamber of Commerce (“San Francisco Chamber”) 13 is a not-for-profit membership corporation organized under the laws of the State of California and 14 headquartered in San Francisco. The San Francisco Chamber is a small entity within the meaning of 15 the Regulatory Flexibility Act and is both an employer and a membership organization. The San 16 Francisco Chamber has approximately 2,000 members, more than 80% of which are small businesses 17 within the meaning of section 3 of the Small Business Act, most of which are headquartered in the 18 Northern District of California. Many of the small businesses would receive no-match letters from 19 SSA in the event that the Final Rule at issue in this case was to become effective. Indeed, for many 20 of its small business members, the likelihood of receiving such letter exceeds 90%. The San 21 Francisco Chamber understands that the financial costs associated with resolving no-match letters are 22 substantial and not necessarily linear. Those costs involve overtime for those in human resources, 23 lost productivity for those employees named in such letters, and increased unemployment insurance 24 premiums in the event that the employees who are unable to resolve a no-match within the requisite 25 period are terminated. Based on the San Francisco Chamber’s experience, it is highly unlikely that 26 SSA would be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches within the time contemplated by 27 the Final Rule. The San Francisco Chamber and its members will be imminently and irreparably 28 harmed if the Final Rule was to go into effect. The San Francisco Chamber is bringing this suit both

1 on its behalf as a small entity employer and on behalf of its members many of which will also receive 2 such letters.

3 7. Plaintiff-Intervenor Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America
4 (“Chamber of Commerce”) is a not-for-profit membership corporation headquartered in Washington, 5 D.C. and employing more than 500 individuals. The Chamber of Commerce is the world’s largest 6 business federation with an underlying membership of more than 3 million businesses of all sizes, 7 sectors, and regions. The Chamber of Commerce is a small organization within the meaning of the 8 Regulatory Flexibility Act and more than 96% of its members are small businesses as that term is 9 defined in section three of the Small Business Act. Based on the Chamber’s experience as an 10 employer it is highly unlikely that SSA would be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches
11 within the time contemplated by the Final Rule. The Chamber and its members will be imminently 12 and irreparably harmed if the Final Rule was to go into effect. The Chamber is bringing this suit both 13 on behalf of itself as a small entity employer which is apt to receive a no-match letter and on behalf 14 of its members many of which will also receive such letters.

15 8. Plaintiff-Intervenor Golden Gate Restaurant Association (“GGRA”) is a not-for-profit 16 membership corporation headquartered in San Francisco. GGRA has more than 800 restaurant 17 members throughout the Northern District of California; many of those members have received no-18 match letters in the past and fully expect to receive them in the future. GGRA is a small organization 19 within the meaning of the Regulatory Flexibility Act and most of its members are small businesses 20 within the meaning of section 3 of the Small Business Act. Based on GGRA’s experience as an 21 employer, it is highly unlikely that SSA would be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches 22 within the time contemplated by the Final Rule. GGRA and its members will be imminently and 23 irreparably harmed if the Final Rule was to go into effect. GGRA is bringing this suit both on its 24 behalf as a small entity employer and on behalf of its members many of which will receive no-match 25 letters.

26 9. Plaintiff-Intervenor National Roofing Contractors Association (“NRCA”) is a not-for-27 profit membership organization headquartered in Rosemont, Illinois and employing more than 70 28 individuals. The NRCA is a small organization within the meaning of the Regulatory Flexibility Act

1 and more than 95% of its 4,200 members are small businesses within the meaning of section 3 of the 2 Small Business Act. More than 30 of its small business members are headquartered in this District.
3 The financial costs for NRCA and its members to resolve no-match letters are substantial and not 4 necessarily linear. Those costs involve overtime for those in human resources, lost productivity for 5 those employees named in such letters, increased unemployment insurance premiums in the event 6 that the employees who are unable to resolve a no-match letter within the requisite period and are 7 terminated. Based on NRCA's experience as an employer, it is highly unlikely that SSA would be 8 able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches within the time contemplated by the Final Rule.
9 NCRA and its members will be imminently and irreparably harmed if the Final Rule was to go into 10 effect. NRCA is bringing this suit both on behalf of itself as a small entity employer which is apt to 11 receive a no-match letter and on behalf of its members, many of which will also receive such letters.

12 10. Plaintiff-Intervenor United Fresh Produce Association ("United Fresh") is a not-for-13 profit membership organization headquartered in Washington, D.C. United Fresh has more than 290 14 small business members; many of those members have received no-match letters in the past and fully 15 expect to receive them in the future. United Fresh is a small organization within the meaning of the 16 Regulatory Flexibility Act and most of its business members are small businesses within the meaning 17 of section 3 of the Small Business Act. Based on United Fresh's experience as an employer, it is 18 highly unlikely that SSA would be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches within the time
19 contemplated by the Final Rule. United Fresh and its members will be imminently and irreparably 20 harmed if the Final Rule was to go into effect. United Fresh is bringing this suit both on its behalf as 21 a small entity employer and on behalf of its members many of which will receive no-match letters.

22 11. Plaintiff-Intervenor American Nursery & Landscape Association ("ANLA") is a not-23 for-profit membership corporation headquartered in Washington, D.C. ANLA has more than 2,000 24 members, 98% of which are small businesses; many of those members have received no-match letters 25 in the past and fully expect to receive them in the future. ANLA is a small organization within the 26 meaning of the Regulatory Flexibility Act and most of its members are small businesses within the 27 meaning of section 3 of the Small Business Act. Based on ANLA's experience as an employer, it is 28 highly unlikely that SSA would be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches within the time

1 contemplated by the Final Rule. ANLA and its members will be imminently and irreparably harmed
2 if the Final Rule was to go into effect. ANLA is bringing this suit both on its behalf as a small entity 3 employer and on behalf of its members many of which will receive no-match letters.

4 12. Plaintiff-Intervenor International Franchise Association (“IFA”) is a not-for-profit 5 membership corporation headquartered in Washington, D.C. IFA has more than 11,000 members, 6 including 1,200 franchisor members, 10,000 franchisee members and 400 supplier members.
7 Approximately half of IFA’s franchisor members and virtually all of its franchisee members are small 8 businesses; many of those members have received no-match letters in the past and fully expect to 9 receive them in the future. IFA is a small organization within the meaning of the Regulatory 10 Flexibility Act and many of its members are small businesses within the meaning of section 3 of the 11 Small Business Act. Based on IFA’s experience as an employer, it is highly unlikely that SSA would 12 be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-matches within the time contemplated by the Final 13 Rule. IFA and its members will be imminently and irreparably harmed if the Final Rule was to go 14 into effect. IFA is bringing this suit both on its behalf as a small entity employer and on behalf of its 15 members many of which will receive no-match letters.

16 13. Plaintiff-Intervenor California Landscape Contractors Association, Inc. (“CLCA”) is a 17 not-for-profit membership corporation organized under the laws of the State of California with 18 chapters located in this District. CLCA is a small entity within the meaning of the Regulatory 19 Flexibility Act and is both an employer and a membership organization. CLCA has approximately 20 2,800 companies in its membership, including 2150 state-licensed landscape contractors and 400
21 companies that provide supplies to these contractors. The overwhelming majority of CLCA’s 22 members are small businesses within the meaning of section 3 of the Small Business Act. They are 23 headquartered throughout the state of California, including the Northern District of California. Many 24 of these small businesses have received and will receive no-match letters from SSA in the event that 25 the Final Rule at issue in this case were to become effective. CLCA understands that the financial 26 costs associated with resolving no-match letters are substantial and not necessarily linear. Those 27 costs involve overtime for those in human resources, lost productivity for those employees named in 28 such letters, and increased unemployment insurance premiums in the event that the employees who

1 are unable to resolve a no-match within the requisite period are terminated. Based on CLCA's
2 experience, it is highly unlikely that SSA would be able to resolve the more than 8 million no-3 matches within the time contemplated by the Final Rule. CLCA and its members will be imminently
4 and irreparably harmed if the Final Rule were to go into effect. CLCA is bringing this suit on behalf 5 of itself as a small entity employer and on behalf of its members, many of which have received and 6 will receive such letters.

7 B. Defendants

8 14. Defendant Department of Homeland Security is the federal agency charged with, inter
9 alia, the administration and enforcement of federal immigration laws. DHS promulgated the rule 10 entitled "Safe Harbor Procedures for Employers That Receive a No Match Letter," 72 Fed. Reg.
11 45611 (Aug. 15, 2007), that is challenged in this litigation.

12 15. Defendant U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement ("ICE") is a federal agency
13 within DHS responsible for investigating and enforcing immigration laws, including 8 U.S.C. § 14 1324a. DHS and ICE created the Guidance Letter regarding the DHS Final Rule that SSA intends to 15 send to employers along with its "no-match" letters.

16 16. Defendant Michael Chertoff is the Secretary of Homeland Security ("Secretary"), the 17 agency responsible for having issuing the regulation at issue and the agency that will implement the 18 regulation at issue. Defendant Chertoff is being sued in his official capacity only.

19 17. Defendant Julie Myers is the Assistant Secretary of Homeland Security for ICE, the 20 agency within the Department of Homeland Security ("DHS") directly responsible for implementing, 21 investigating and enforcing immigration laws, including the no-match letters and Final Rule.
22 Defendant Myers is being sued in her official capacity only.

23 18. Defendant Social Security Administration is a federal agency charged with 24 administration of the Social Security Act, and with processing information to administer Social 25 Security programs. Defendant SSA maintains databases of employee information and periodically 26 generates "no-match" letters to employers that submit Forms W-2 to report employee earnings if 27 employee names and SSNs do not match SSA records. See Social Security Act § 232, 42 U.S.C. § 28

1 432; 20 C.F.R. § 422.120. Beginning on September 4, 2007, Defendant SSA intended to send the 2 DHS/ICE Guidance Letter to employers along with its “no-match” letters.

3 19. Defendant Michael Astrue is the Commissioner of Social Security and is responsible 4 for all programs administered by SSA. He is sued in his official capacity.

5 V. BACKGROUND

6 A. Social Security Administration “No Match” Letters

7 20. The Social Security Act of 1935 authorizes SSA to establish a record-keeping system 8 to manage the Social Security program. Congress also granted SSA authority to process tax 9 information for purposes of administering the Social Security program, as a specific exception to the 10 exclusive tax authority of the Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”). See 26 U.S.C. § 6103(l)(5); SSA § 11 232, 42 U.S.C. § 432. Pursuant to that delegation of authority, the IRS and SSA created a joint 12 system for the processing of Forms W-2 called the Combined Annual Wage Reporting System 13 (“CAWR”). See 43 Fed. Reg. 60158 (Dec. 26, 1978) (codified at 26 C.F.R. § 31.6051).

14 21. Under the CAWR, employers annually report employee earnings using Forms W-2, 15 and SSA posts those earnings to individual employees’ Social Security records so employees will 16 receive credit for those earnings when they apply for Social Security benefits--either retirement or 17 disability. SSA then forwards the Forms W-2 to the IRS.

18 22. If SSA cannot match the name and Social Security Number (“SSN”) on a Form W-2 19 with SSA’s records, SSA places the earnings report in its Earnings Suspense File. See 20 C.F.R § 20 422.120. The earnings remain in the Earnings Suspense File until SSA can link them to a name and 21 SSN.

22 23. Every year, SSA receives millions of earnings reports that the SSA cannot match with 23 its records. The Earnings Suspense File is a huge database that contains more than 255 million 24 unmatched earnings records and that is growing at the rate of 8 to 11 million unmatched records per 25 year. About four percent of annual Form W-2 earnings reports are placed in the SSA’s Earnings 26 Suspense File.

27 24. SSA records are mismatched for many unrelated to immigration status including: (a) 28 clerical errors by either an employer or SSA in spelling an employee’s name or recording the SSN,

1 (b) SSA's issuance of duplicate SSNs or re-issuance of SSNs of deceased individuals, (c) employee 2 name changes after marriage or divorce, (d) employees that use a less "foreign" sounding first name 3 for work purposes, and (e) different naming conventions (such as the use of multiple surnames) that 4 are commonplace in many parts of the world, particularly in some Latin American and Asian 5 countries.

6 25. The most recent Government Accountability Office ("GAO") report on the SSA's 7 Earnings Suspense File concluded that the file "[c]ontains information about many U.S. citizens as 8 well as non-citizens" and that "the overall percentage of unauthorized workers is unknown." GAO-9 06-814R, at 8 (emphasis added). When SSA ultimately has been able to resolve data discrepancies, 10 "most . . . belong to U.S.-born citizens, not to unauthorized workers," which GAO concluded "is an 11 indication that a significant number of earnings reports in the [Earnings Suspense File] belong to U.S.
12 Citizens and work-authorized noncitizens." Id.

13 26. As part of its administration of the Social Security program, SSA periodically sends 14 out letters, commonly known as "no-match" letters, informing employers that SSNs and employee 15 names reported on Forms W-2 did not match SSA's records. See 20 C.F.R. § 422.120.

16 27. SSA no-match letters are purely advisory. SSA has no authority to sanction 17 employers that fail to respond to no-match letters.

18 28. Pursuant to its regulations, SSA notifies the IRS of incomplete or inaccurate earnings 19 reports. See 20 C.F.R. § 422.120. In 1986, Congress authorized IRS to impose sanctions on 20 employers that submit false or inaccurate tax information. See 26 U.S.C. § 6721; see also 26 C.F.R.
21 § 301.6721-1. Under IRS regulations, an employer is not subject to sanction if the employer
22 accurately and in good faith transmits the name and SSN provided by an employee. See 26 U.S.C. § 23 6724(a); 26 C.F.R. § 301.6724-1. Insofar as the Internal Revenue Code is concerned, a reasonable 24 employer's response to a no-match letter is to confirm that the employer is accurately transmitting the 25 name and SSN provided by the employee and to advise the employee that SSA is reporting a no-26 match. Id.

27 29. SSA is not an immigration agency and does not know whether a particular SSN listed 28 in a no-match letter relates to unauthorized work. SSA also is prohibited by tax privacy statutes

1 from sharing the information in the Earnings Suspense File with the DHS. Until now, SSA's no-
2 match letters explained to employers: "This letter does not imply that you or your employee 3 intentionally gave the government wrong information" and "makes no statement regarding an 4 employee's immigration status." Until now, the SSA has never included information from an 5 immigration-enforcement agency with its no-match letters.

6 B. Employer Verification of Work Authorization and Employer Sanctions

7 30. The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 ("IRCA") made it unlawful for 8 employers to "to hire . . . for employment in the United States an alien knowing the alien is an 9 unauthorized alien." 8 U.S.C. § 1324a(a)(1)(A) (emphasis added).

10 31. IRCA also separately made it unlawful for employers to hire without complying with 11 an initial verification process established by Congress. See 8 U.S.C. § 1324a(a)(1)(B). That 12 verification process requires the employee to present the employer with documents to show proof of 13 identity and work authorization and requires the employer and employee to complete an I-9 14 verification form. See 8 U.S.C. § 1324a(b); 8 C.F.R. § 274a.2. To satisfy the I-9 requirements, 15 Plaintiffs require all prospective employees to provide documentation proving identity and 16 demonstrating that the employee is authorized to work in the United States. Thus, prospective 17 employees provide various documents including United States passports, alien registration cards (i.e., 18 Green Card), and Employee Authorization Documents issued by the DHS permitting the individual to 19 work in the United States.

20 32. IRCA also makes it unlawful for an employer "to continue to employ an alien . . .
21 knowing the alien is (or has become) an unauthorized alien with respect to such employment." 8 22 U.S.C. § 1324a(a)(2) (emphasis added).

23 33. IRCA specifically exempted employees hired before IRCA's enactment on November 24 6, 1986, from the hiring prohibition and the verification process. Pub. L. No. 99-603 § 101(a)(3), 100 25 Stat. 3359 (1986) (codified at 8 U.S.C. § 1324a note).

26 34. Employers that violate IRCA are subject to civil and criminal liability. See 8 U.S.C. § 27 1324a(e)(4)-(5), (f).
28

1 35. At the same time that Congress imposed employer sanctions, Congress also wanted to 2 prevent employer discrimination based on national origin or citizenship status. IRCA therefore 3 makes it illegal for employers to discriminate based on national origin or citizenship status, including 4 by requesting “more or different documents than are required” for the initial I-9 verification or 5 “refusing to honor documents . . . that on their face reasonably appear to be genuine.” 8 U.S.C. § 6 1324b(a)(1), (6).

7 36. Congress intentionally did not impose in IRCA any employment authorization 8 verification for existing employees. Congress also chose not to impose ongoing re-verification 9 requirements after the initial hire unless documents evidencing temporary work authorization are 10 time limited.

11 C. New Department of Homeland Security Rule

12 37. Until now, neither DHS nor its predecessor immigration-enforcement agencies had 13 taken the position that an employer’s failure to make further inquiries into the work-authorization 14 status of an employee subject to an SSA no-match letter meant that the employer had actual 15 knowledge that it was employing an unauthorized worker. The Immigration and Naturalization 16 Service had recognized that no-match discrepancies occur for many innocent reasons and therefore 17 consistently advised employers in opinion letters that “[w]e would not consider notice of this 18 discrepancy from SSA to an employer by itself to put the employer on notice that the employee is 19 unauthorized to work.” The most recent SSA letter on the materiality of a no-match letter states as 20 follows: “This notice also specifically cautions employers that these letters . . . do not make any 21 statement about an employee's immigration status[.]”

22 <<http://www.ssa.gov/legislation/nomatch2.htm>> (last viewed Sept. 6, 2007).

23 38. On June 14, 2006, Defendant Chertoff issued a notice of proposed rulemaking 24 soliciting public comments on his proposal to use the Social Security database, and, in particular, 25 SSA no-match letters as vehicle for enforcing the immigration laws. See 71 Fed. Reg. 34281 (June 26 14, 2006). The preamble concluded, in part, as follows:

27 //

1 The Secretary of Homeland Security, in accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility 2 Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b), has reviewed this regulation and, by approving it, certifies that 3 this rule would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of 4 small entities. This rule would not affect small entities as that term is defined in 5
 U.S.C. 601(6). Id. at 34284.

5 39. As result, the Secretary did not conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Act analysis.

6 40. More than 5,000 comments were received by DHS during the 60-day comment period, 7 including comments that disputed DHS' authority to adopt the rule, and DHS' assertion that the rule 8 "would not affect small entities." Plaintiff-Intervenors or coalitions of which they are members were 9 among those that submitted comments objecting to the rule. The comment period closed on 10 August 14, 2006.

11 41. Shortly after Congress left for recess without enacting immigration reform legislation 12 urged by DHS, the agency issued its final rule on August 15, 2007 (hereinafter, the "DHS Final 13 Rule"). See 72 Fed. Reg. 45611 (Aug. 15, 2007). The DHS Final Rule is entitled "Safe-Harbor 14 Procedures for Employers Who Receive a No-Match Letter." The DHS Final Rule was to become 15 legally effective on September 14, 2007.

16 42. The DHS Final Rule will amend the definition of "knowing" in 8 C.F.R. § 17 274a.1(l)(1), the regulatory subsection that defines the term "knowing" for purposes of IRCA. The 18 amended regulation will list, as an example of an employer that has "constructive knowledge" that an 19 employee is an "unauthorized alien," an employer that receives a SSA no-match letter and then "fails 20 to take reasonable steps." The first part of the amended regulation will provide:

21 (l)(1) The term knowing includes having actual or constructive knowledge. . . .
 22 Examples of situations where the employer may, depending upon the totality 23 of the relevant circumstances, have constructive knowledge that an employee is an unauthorized alien include, but are not limited to, situations where the employer:

24
 (iii) Fails to take reasonable steps after receiving information 25 indicating that the employee may be an alien who is not employment authorized, such as –

26
 (B) Written notice to the employer from the Social Security 27 Administration reporting earnings on a Form W-2 that employees' names and corresponding social security account numbers fail to match 28 Social Security Administration records

1 43. Having created a threat of IRCA liability for employers receiving SSA no-match 2 letters, the DHS Final Rule then offers employers a “safe harbor.” An employer receiving a SSA no-3 match letter “will be considered by the Department of Homeland Security to have taken reasonable 4 steps – and receipt of the written notice will therefore not be used as evidence of constructive 5 knowledge – if the employer” takes the actions specified by DHS. These are “the only combination 6 of steps that will guarantee that DHS will not use the employer’s receipt of the notices from SSA . . .
7 as evidence of constructive knowledge that an employee is an unauthorized alien.” 72 Fed. Reg. at 8 45618.

9 44. To qualify for the DHS “safe harbor,” an employer that determines the SSA no-match 10 was not the result of its own clerical error (which must be done in 30 days) must instruct the 11 employee who claims that the name and SSN are correct to resolve the discrepancy with SSA within 12 90 days of receipt of the no-match letter. If the employee is unable to resolve the discrepancy with 13 SSA within 90 days, the employer cannot continue to employ the individual unless the individual can 14 complete within three days a new employment eligibility verification, on a new I-9 form, using only 15 documents that contain photo identification and no documents that contain the disputed SSN, even if 16 the employee still insists the SSN is correct. If employees insist that their names and SSNs on their 17 identification documents are correct but have not resolved the discrepancy with SSA by the deadline, 18 or cannot produce the required additional photo identification, the employer would have to fire them 19 in order to be afforded the “safe harbor.”

20 D. Implementation of the DHS Final Rule by DHS and SSA

21 45. On September 4, 2007, DHS and SSA intended to begin sending employers no-match 22 letters that will be accompanied by a letter from DHS and ICE (hereinafter the “DHS/ICE Guidance 23 Letter”). This Court’s Temporary Restraining Order of August 31, 2007, temporarily precluded the 24 issuance of those letters. The DHS/ICE Guidance Letter states that it will “provide guidance on how 25 to respond to the enclosed letter from the Social Security Administration (SSA) . . . in a manner that 26 is consistent with your obligations under United States Immigration Laws.”

27 46. The DHS/ICE Guidance Letter contains questions and answers, which begin with the 28 following:

1 Q: Can I simply disregard the letter from SSA?

2 A: No. You have received official notification of a problem that may have 3 significant legal consequences for your employees. If you elect to disregard the notice 4 you have received and it is determined that some employees listed in the enclosed 5 letter were not authorized to work, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) could 6 determine that you have violated the law by knowingly continuing to employ 7 unauthorized persons. This could lead to civil and criminal sanctions.

8 47. After threatening employers with civil and criminal liability, the DHS/ICE Guidance 9 Letter then asks: “Q: What should I do?” and responds that “You should” follow the steps set out 10 in the DHS Final Rule.

11 48. The DHS/ICE Guidance Letter assures employers that, if they follow those procedures 12 for every no-match, they will not be liable for discrimination if they terminate employees:

13 Q: Will I be liable for discrimination charges brought by the United States if 14 I terminate the employee after I follow the steps outlined above?

15 A: No.”

16 49. The DHS/ICE Guidance Letter conveniently ignores those Civil Rights laws 17 administered by other federal agencies, by the States, or by private interests, such as Title VII of the 18 Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq., Ku Klux Klan Act of 1867, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1981, 19 1988, California Anti-Discrimination Laws, all of which would be potentially implicated were an 20 employer to terminate employees solely because of the Final Rule or because of the Final Rule as 21 implemented by the Guidance Letter.

22 50. SSA has revised its no-match letters so that they direct employers to follow the 23 instructions in the accompanying DHS/ICE Guidance Letter.

24 51. SSA and DHS intended to commence sending the revised no-match letters and the 25 DHS/ICE Guidance Letter to employers on September 4, 2007. Between September 4, 2007 and 26 November 9, 2007, the SSA expected to mail no-match letters to approximately 140,000 employers 27 around the country. Each letter will list at least 10 mismatched SSNs and some letters will list 500 or 28 more. Approximately 8.7 million employees will be affected by this initial wave of mailings.

 52. SSA will continue to mail additional batches of no-match letters after November 9, 2007, to hundreds of thousands of other employers.

1 E. Effect of Implementation of the New DHS Final Rule

2 53. Implementation of the DHS Final Rule following the expiration of this Court's TRO 3 will immediately impose new obligations in violation of law on every employer governed by IRCA.

4 54. The imminent SSA mailing will immediately impose substantial administrative costs 5 on at least 140,000 employers, including Plaintiff-Intervenors and their members, and additional 6 employers will be affected as SSA continues in the future to send out no-match letters accompanied 7 by the DHS/ICE Guidance Letter. Given that the initial DHS/SSA mailing would cover 8 approximately 8.7 million SSNs, the cost to resolve those will easily exceed $100 million and there is 9 no assurance that they could be resolved within the regulatory period. Indeed, there is no evidence 10 whatsoever in the administrative record to suggest that the so-called "safe harbor" window can be 11 achieved, especially when SSA will be flooded with such requests.

12 55. A substantial portion of the several million no-match SSNs that are listed in the initial 13 round of SSA no-match letters will relate to U.S. citizens or non-citizens lawfully entitled to work. A 14 substantial number of these United States citizen no-matches are employed by Plaintiff-Intervenors 15 and their small business members.

16 56. As a result of implementation of the DHS Final Rule, including the DHS/ICE 17 Guidance Letter, Plaintiff-Intervenors and their members will immediately be forced to spend time 18 and effort to resolve SSA data discrepancies, including taking time to visit SSA field offices that are 19 open only during business hours and that will be overwhelmed with similar requests from other 20 employers and employees.

21 57. Many individuals lawfully employed by the Plaintiff-Intervenors and their small 22 business members will be unable to resolve data discrepancies with the SSA bureaucracy within the 23 90-day deadline set out in the DHS Final Rule; those employees risk termination even though they 24 are United States Citizens or lawful immigrants. SSA already has told DHS that in "difficult cases," 25 SSA may be unable to resolve discrepancies within the 90-day timeframe. Despite all these costs, the 26 majority of which will be borne by "small entities," as that term is defined in the Regulatory 27 Flexibility Act, the Secretary, in issuing the Final Rule, certified, without any factual basis, that the 28 Final Rule "would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities."

1 72 Fed. Reg. 45611, 45623 (Aug. 15, 2007). Accordingly, the Secretary did not conduct an initial 2 regulatory flexibility analysis or a final regulatory flexibility analysis or comply with any other 3 requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

4 VI. CLAIMS

5 FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

6 Failure to Perform a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (5 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.)

7 58. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference the allegations set forth in ¶¶ 1 –56, above.

8 59. The Final Rule will have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of 9 small entities, including Plaintiff-Intervenors and their small business members. Most small business 10 employers will have to devote substantial additional resources toward complying with the Final Rule, 11 and some will lose employees who are otherwise qualified and lawful residents of the United States 12 merely because SSA is unable to resolve discrepancies in their database within the requisite timer 13 period. The loss of otherwise qualified and lawful employees will impede productivity and 14 profitability and interfere with normal and lawful business operations. On information and belief, the 15 economic impact on small entities will easily exceed $100 million per annum.

16 60. Despite the Final Rule's significant economic impact on small entities, the Secretary 17 failed to undertake a regulatory flexibility analysis, as required by law. Instead, the Secretary 18 certified, without providing a factual basis as required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act, that the 19 Final Rule would have no significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

20 61. The Secretary's certification that there would be no significant economic impact is 21 wrong and is not supported by the record or the sound factual basis required by the Regulatory 22 Flexibility Act. In short, the Secretary violated the RFA.

23 62. As a result of the aforesaid violation, Plaintiff-Intervenors and their small entity 24 members will suffer imminent and irreparable injury if the Final Rule were to go into effect.

25 SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

26 Excess of Statutory Authority (8 U.S.C. § 1324a & 5 U.S.C. §§ 706(2)(A), (C))

27 63. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference all preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.
 28

1 3. Enter a declaratory judgment as to Count I that DHS failed to undertake the required 2 Regulatory Flexibility Act analysis and a permanent injunction to prohibit Defendants from 3 implementing its Final Rule or otherwise giving effect to the Final Rule until such time as Defendant 4 Chertoff discharges his responsibilities under the Regulatory Flexibility Act to the satisfaction of the 5 Court, and retain jurisdiction of this case to ensure compliance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

6 4. Award Plaintiff-Intervenors their costs and expenses, including reasonable attorney's 7 fees whether under the Equal Access to Justice Act or otherwise, and expert witness fees; and 8 5. Award such further and additional relief as is just and proper.
