IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Jason Fenty, et al.,
Plaintiffs/Petitioners,
v.
Sheriff Paul Penzone, et al.,
Defendants/Respondents.

No. CV 20-01192-PHX-SPL (JZB)

ORDER

Plaintiffs/Petitioners Jason Fenty, Brian Stepter, Douglas Crough, Edward Reason, Jesus Tequida, Ramon Avenenti, Anthony Scroggins, Dale Perez, and Tamara Ochoa, who are each confined in a Maricopa County jail, and the Puente Human Rights Movement (hereafter “Plaintiffs”), filed through counsel a “Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus and Complaint for Injunctive and Declaratory Relief” (hereafter “Complaint”) concerning the Maricopa County Sheriff’s Office’s (MCSO) response of the to the COVID-19 pandemic and the risk to Plaintiff of contracting COVID-19 while incarcerated in MCSO jails. (Doc. 1.) Pending before the Court is Plaintiffs’ Motion for Class Certification.¹ (Doc. 14.)

¹ The Court finds this motion suitable for disposition without a hearing pursuant to Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(f).

1 I. Background²

2 Plaintiffs filed this action on June 12, 2020, presenting seven claims for relief 3 stemming from Defendants' alleged deliberate indifference to their welfare during the 4 COVID-19 pandemic as well as violations of Title II of the Americans with Disabilities
5 Act (ADA) and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act ("Section 504"). (Doc. 1.) Plaintiffs 6 seek declaratory and injunctive relief and/or writs of habeas corpus requiring the release of 7 certain subclass members and injunctive relief "to abate the risk of the spread of COVID-8 19." (Id. at 47-50.)

9 In an Order dated August 14, 2020, the Court denied Plaintiffs' Motion for 10 Preliminary Injunction and granted Defendants' Motion to Dismiss the Fourth and Eighth 11 Amendment claims against Defendant Penzone and denied the Motion to Dismiss in all 12 other respects. (Doc. 52.)

13 II. Motion for Class Certification

14 Plaintiffs seek certification of two classes: (1) a Pretrial Class, which includes a 15 Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass and a Pretrial Disability Subclass; and (2) a Post-16 Conviction Class, which includes a Post-Conviction Medically Vulnerable Subclass and a 17 Post-Conviction Disability Subclass. The proposed Pretrial Class consists of "[a]ll current 18 and future persons held by Defendants in pretrial detention at the five jails operated by the 19 Maricopa County Sheriff's Office, known as the 4th Avenue, Saguaro, Estrella, Lower 20 Buckeye, and Towers jails (together, the 'Maricopa County jails')." (Doc. 11 at 3.) The 21 proposed Post-Conviction Class consists of "[a]ll current and future persons held by 22 Defendants in post-conviction detention at the Maricopa County jails." (Id.) The 23 Medically Vulnerable subclasses include the members of each class who are age 50 or 24 older or who have medical conditions that place them at heightened risk of severe illness 25 or death from COVID-19, such as lung disease, heart disease, chronic liver or kidney 26 disease, diabetes, hypertension, compromised immune systems (such as from cancer, HIV,

1 or autoimmune disease), blood disorders (including sickle cell disease), developmental 2 disabilities, severe obesity, and moderate to severe asthma. (Id. at 5.) The Disability 3 subclasses include those with disabilities as defined under the ADA and Section 504 and 4 whose disabilities put them at increased risk of serious illness or death if they contract 5 COVID-19. (Id. at 3.) By definition, under the ADA and Section 504, all Medically 6 Vulnerable Subclass members, except those who are deemed medically vulnerable solely 7 because of their age or obesity, are also members of the Disability Subclasses. (Id.)

8 III. Governing Standard

9 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 sets out the Court’s authority to certify a class 10 action. “Parties seeking class certification bear the burden of demonstrating that they have 11 met each of the four requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a) and at least one 12 of the requirements of Rule 23(b).” Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970, 979-13 80 (9th Cir. 2011) (citations omitted). Rule 23(a) requires that: (1) the class is so numerous 14 that joinder of all members is impracticable; (2) there are questions of law or fact common 15 to the class; (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims 16 or defenses of the class; and (4) the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect 17 the interests of the class. The Rule 23(a) requirements are known as: “(1) numerosity; 18 (2) commonality; (3) typicality; and (4) adequacy of representation.” Parsons v. Ryan, 754 19 F.3d 657, 674 (9th Cir. 2014). When analyzing whether class certification is appropriate, 20 the Court must conduct “a rigorous analysis” to ensure that “the prerequisites of Rule 23(a) 21 have been satisfied.” Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, (2011) (citing Gen.
22 Tel. Co. of the SW v. Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 161 (1982)).

23 Plaintiffs argue that they meet the requirements of Rule 23(a) as well as Rule 24 23(b)(2), which requires a demonstration that “the party opposing the class has acted or 25 refused to act on grounds that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief or 26 corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting the class as a whole.”

27 As discussed below, the Court finds that certification of the Classes and the 28 Subclasses is appropriate.

1 IV. Rule 23(a) Analysis

2 A. Numerosity

3 Courts have generally found the numerosity requirement to be satisfied “when a 4 class includes at least 40 members.” Rannis v. Recchia, 380 F. App’x 646, 651 (9th Cir.
5 2010) (noting that a class of 15 would be too small and require joinder of all class members 6 rather than class certification) (citing Gen. Tel. Co. of the NW, Inc. v. EEOC, 446 U.S. 318, 7 330 (1980)); see also Consol. Rail Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 47 F.3d 473, 483 (2d 8 Cir.1995) (noting that “numerosity is presumed at a level of 40 members”) (citation 9 omitted); In re Nat’l W. Life Ins. Deferred Annuities Litig., 268 F.R.D. 652, 660 (S.D. Cal.
10 2010) (noting that “[c]ourts have found joinder impracticable in cases involving as few as 11 forty class members”) (citations omitted). “While no absolute limit exists, numerosity is 12 met when general knowledge and common sense indicate that joinder would be 13 impracticable.” Knapper v. Cox Commc’ns, Inc., 329 F.R.D. 238, 241 (D. Ariz. 2019) 14 (citations omitted).

15 Plaintiffs argue that the exact numbers and identities of members in each class and 16 subclass are unknown because this information is exclusively within Defendants’ control, 17 but that “common sense dictates that each class and subclass almost certainly includes at 18 least 40 members” since Defendants’ own reports show there are roughly 4,500 individuals 19 currently within the jails.” (Doc. 11 at 12-13.) Plaintiffs allege in their Complaint that 20 there are at least 300 people in the MCSO jails who are medically vulnerable based solely 21 on their age, and they cite to a Department of Justice study finding that “half of state and 22 federal prisoners and local jail inmates reported having a chronic condition.” (Id. at 13.)
23 They also cite to CDC Guidance, which notes that the incarcerated “have higher prevalence 24 of infectious and chronic diseases and are in poorer health than the general population, 25 even at younger ages.” (Id.)

26 Plaintiffs also contend that joinder is impracticable because joinder takes time and 27 any delay in this case “will increase serious harms and even deaths” because COVID-19 28 “is spreading exponentially across the Maricopa County jails.” (Id. at 13.) They further

1 argue that joinder is impracticable because of difficulties in communicating with those who 2 are incarcerated, the inherently transitory nature of the classes and inability to identify 3 future class members, and because many class members are indigent and would have 4 limited ability to seek counsel and file individual actions. (Id. at 14.)

5 Defendants do not dispute that the numerosity requirement is satisfied for the two 6 proposed classes. As of August 11, 2020, the MCSO total population was 4,685, (Doc. 54 7 ¶ 3), and there is no doubt that joinder of all members of the proposed classes would be 8 impracticable. See Sepulveda v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 237 F.R.D. 229, 242 (C.D. Cal.
9 2006) (acknowledging that joinder will be impracticable for very large classes); Torres v.
10 Goddard, 314 F.R.D. 644, 654 (D. Ariz. 2010) (“In addition to class size, courts consider 11 other indicia of impracticability, such as . . . the size of individual claims, the financial 12 resources of class members, and the ability of claimants to institute individual suits.”).
13 Thus, the numerosity requirement of the two proposed classes is satisfied.

14 As for the proposed subclasses, Defendants argue that Plaintiffs merely speculate as 15 to how many members there are in the proposed subclasses, and even if numerosity could 16 reasonably be inferred, Plaintiffs have submitted only 12 declarations of inmates still in 17 MCSO custody. (Doc. 53 at 5.) Defendants assert that 4 of those inmates are under age 18 50 and allege no medical conditions, and one declarant has been released, which leaves 5 19 pretrial detainees and 2 post-conviction inmates as members of the proposed subclasses, 20 which is insufficiently numerous. (Id. at 6.)

21 Plaintiffs allege in their Complaint, however, that there are at least 300 medically 22 vulnerable inmates in MCSO jails, and the studies Plaintiffs cite suggest that there are at 23 least 40 members in each of the disability subclasses. These numbers make it impracticable 24 for the Court to join all subclass members in a single action or for subclass members to file 25 individual lawsuits. Thus, Plaintiffs have satisfied the numerosity requirements of the 26 subclasses.

27

28

1 B. Commonality

2 To establish commonality, Plaintiffs must demonstrate that there are “questions of 3 law or fact common to the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2). Plaintiffs need not demonstrate 4 that all questions are common to the class; rather, class claims must “depend upon a 5 common contention . . . [that is] capable of classwide resolution.” Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 6 350. “Even a single [common] question” will suffice to satisfy Rule 23(a). Id. at 359
7 (citation omitted). In the civil rights context, commonality is satisfied “where the lawsuit 8 challenges a system-wide practice or policy that affects all of the putative class members.” 9 Armstrong v. Davis, 275 F.3d 849, 868 (9th Cir. 2001).

10 In assessing commonality, “it may be necessary for the court to probe behind the 11 pleadings before coming to rest on the certification question.” Gen’l. Tel. Co. of SW. v.
12 Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 160 (1982) (“[T]he class determination generally involves 13 considerations that are enmeshed in the factual and legal issues comprising the plaintiff’s 14 cause of action.”) (quotation omitted). That said, although the Court must consider the 15 underlying merits of Plaintiffs’ claims to ascertain whether commonality exists, it is not 16 the Court’s function at this juncture to “go so far . . . as to judge the validity of these 17 claims.” United Steel, Paper & Forestry, Rubber, Mfg. Energy, Allied Indus. & Serv.
18 Workers Int’l Union, AFL-CIO, CLC v. ConocoPhillips Co., 593 F.3d 802, 808-09 (9th 19 Cir. 2010) (quoting Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 954 (9th Cir. 2003)). Thus, a 20 motion for class certification is not an opportunity to hold “a dress rehearsal for the trial on 21 the merits.” Messner v. Northshore Univ. HealthSystem, 669 F.3d 802, 811 (7th Cir. 2012).
22 The Supreme Court reinforced that plaintiffs are not required to establish their claims at 23 the class certification stage in Amgen Inc. v. Connecticut Retirement Plans and Trust 24 Funds, 568 U.S. 455, 466 (2013) (“Rule 23 grants courts no license to engage in free-25 ranging merits inquiries at the certification stage.”).

26 Plaintiffs argue that commonality is satisfied because all members of the proposed 27 classes are confined in Maricopa County jails “and are therefore subject to the same 28 policies, procedures, and practices that are part and parcel of Defendants’ woefully

1 inadequate response to COVID-19.” (Doc. 11 at 15.) Plaintiffs assert that “[a]ll have been 2 directed by the CDC and other health authorities to abide by certain social distancing 3 practices for their own safety, as well as the safety of others, and their common inability to 4 comply with those guidelines is the direct result of the common conditions of confinement 5 provided by the Defendants. All are subject to the same conditions that actively promote, 6 rather than ameliorate, the spread of COVID-19.” (Id.) They also argue that there are 7 common questions of law because each class and subclass “asks whether the Defendants’ 8 policies subject the class members to a heightened risk of serious illness and death” in 9 violation of their Eighth and Fourteenth Amendment rights and the disability subclass asks 10 whether Defendants are violating its members’ rights under the ADA and Section 504. (Id.
11 at 16.)

12 Defendants raise many issues related to commonality in their Response.³ 13 Defendants argue first that Plaintiffs’ Motion does not address the elements of either their 14 constitutional or ADA/Section 504 claims and Plaintiffs “have not demonstrated through 15 significant proof a systematic deficient policy or practice such that those claims can be 16 uniformly resolved in one stroke.” (Doc. 53 at 10.) Defendants cite to Wal-Mart, which 17 noted two possible ways of determining commonality in the context of employment 18 discrimination involving a proposed class of both employees and job applicants. Wal- 19 Mart, 564 U.S. at 353. One method was based on whether the employer used a biased 20 testing procedure to evaluate both applicants and employees; the second method required 21 “[s]ignificant proof that an employer operated under a general policy of discrimination . .
22 . [that] manifested itself in hiring and promotion practices in the same general fashion . . .
23 .” (Id.) Based on this second test, Defendants argue that commonality is not met.
24 Defendants go on to distinguish this action from the commonality findings in Parsons and 25 Unknown Parties v. Johnson, 163 F. Supp. 3d 630 (D. Ariz. 2016), upon which Plaintiffs 26 rely. Defendants note that in Parsons, the Ninth Circuit found that the plaintiffs exceeded 27

28 ³ Defendants address commonality and Rule 23(b)(2) in the same section of their Response. (See Doc. 53 at 10-17.)

1 the significant proof requirements by presenting “four thorough and un rebutted expert 2 reports . . . hundreds of internal ADC [Arizona Department of Corrections] documents, and 3 [sworn] declarations by the named plaintiff.” (Id. at 13-14 (quoting Parsons, 754 F.3d at 4 683-84).) And, in Unknown Parties, Defendants note that the district court found that the 5 plaintiffs met the significant proof standard by presenting affidavits and information 6 collected from interviews of 75 civil immigration detainees during a two-year period at 8 7 facilities. (Id. (citing Unknown Parties, 163 F. Supp. 3d at 639).)

8 In this case, Plaintiffs filed their Motion for Class Certification within a day of filing 9 their motion for preliminary injunctive relief, which contained voluminous evidence of 10 allegedly deficient policies or practices with respect to COVID-19, including Declarations 11 of the named Plaintiffs and of one expert, Dr. Robert Cohen, M.D.⁴ (Doc. 8, Exs. 1-15; 12 Doc. 12; Doc. 41 Exs. 1-11.) This evidence contains significant proof of a systematically 13 deficient policy or practice, allowing each of Plaintiffs’ claims to be uniformly resolved in 14 one stroke.

15 Defendants next argue that, while Plaintiffs acknowledge there are differences 16 among the conditions of confinement at the five MCSO jails, Plaintiffs “try to summarily 17 dismiss them as ‘minor’ without any explanation.” (Doc. 53 at 1 (citing Doc. 11 at 13 18 n.7).)⁵ Defendants, though, do not explain how the conditions of confinement differ in the 19 various jails, and they do not argue that each jail is operating under different policies with 20 respect to COVID-19. Thus, this argument is without merit.

21 Defendants also argue that Plaintiffs disregard that the proposed classes and 22 subclasses have inmates at different custody levels and with different medical conditions 23 and disabilities, which affects the case-by-case analysis required to find a constitutional or 24 statutory violation and to remedy it. (Id.) This argument, too, is without merit because

26 ⁴ That evidence is thoroughly discussed in the Court’s August 14, 2020 Order. (See Doc. 52.)

28 ⁵ Plaintiffs assert in footnote 7 that “although there may be minor differences in the conditions at each of the Maricopa County jails, they each remain subject to the same inadequate policies and procedures enacted and enforced by the Defendants.” (Doc. 11 at 15-16 n.7.)

1 Rule 23 does not require that every putative class member share every fact in common.
2 See Rodriguez v. Hayes, 591 F.3d 1105, 1122 (9th Cir. 2010). Rather, “the existence of 3 shared legal issues with divergent factual predicates is sufficient, as is a common core of 4 salient facts coupled with disparate legal remedies within the class.” Id. For purposes of 5 this action, the operative question is not whether each prospective class member faces the 6 same degree of risk or is likely to suffer the same degree of harm, but whether the policies 7 and conditions to which all inmates are equally subject are deliberately indifferent to a 8 substantial risk of serious harm and/or in violation of the ADA and Section 504.

9 Relevant Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit caselaw supports that this core question 10 of fact and law is amenable to class-wide resolution. See Helling v. McKinney, 509 U.S.
11 25, 33 (1993) (noting that the risk of contracting a communicable disease is “one of the 12 prison conditions for which the Eighth Amendment required a remedy, even though it was 13 not alleged that the likely harm would occur immediately and even though the possible 14 infection might not affect all of those exposed”) (internal citation omitted). “[I]n a civil-15 rights suit, . . . commonality is satisfied where the lawsuit challenges a system-wide 16 practice or policy that affects all of the putative class members.” Armstrong 275 F.3d at 17 868; Parsons, 754 F.3d at 678 (“What all members of the putative class and subclass have 18 in common is their alleged exposure . . . to a substantial risk of serious future harm to which 19 the defendants are allegedly deliberately indifferent.”).

20 In Parsons, the Ninth Circuit affirmed the district court’s finding of commonality 21 where the plaintiffs had alleged systemic deficiencies in the ADC’s provision of healthcare 22 to prisoners. 754 F. 3d at 678–79. Parsons found that the alleged constitutionally deficient 23 policies and practices in that action were “the ‘glue’ that holds together the putative class 24 and the putative subclass; either each of the policies and practices is unlawful as to every 25 inmate or it is not.” Id. at 678. Parsons went on to clarify that this inquiry “does not 26 require us to determine the effect of those policies and practices upon any individual class 27 member (or class members) or to undertake any other kind of individualized 28 determination.” Id.

1 Defendants argue that Parsons is distinguishable because the court there looked 2 beyond the necessity of individualized determinations by reasoning that at some point all 3 prisoners confined in ADC would eventually need medical care, whereas the Plaintiffs’ 4 claims here “are contingent on the alleged dangers posed to each individual inmate if they 5 were to contract COVID-19.” (Doc. 53 at 14.) Defendants assert that Plaintiffs have 6 acknowledged that many people who contract COVID-19 do not even develop symptoms, 7 that of the 5 inmates who tested positive for COVID-19 in this case, 4 have recovered
8 without a severe illness, and tests results have shown that more than 40% of MCSO inmates 9 who tested positive were asymptomatic. (Id. at 14-15.) Defendants also point to evidence 10 available online from the CDC that a variety of factors such as underlying medical 11 conditions, age, and race, make the health effects caused by COVID-19 uncertain. (Id. at 12 15.) From this, Defendants argue that the relevant question is not whether Defendants’ 13 policies and practices “adequately prevents COVID-19 infection or spread” but rather 14 “whether every inmate is at substantial risk of serious harm, even if they contracted 15 COVID-19,” which “requires an individualized determination of each detainee’s 16 circumstance.” (Id. at 15.)

17 Defendants’ attempt to distinguish Parsons from this action on the ground that the 18 risks posed to MCSO inmates from exposure to COVID-19 are less certain than the risks 19 posed to the Parsons class from exposure to inadequate healthcare is unpersuasive.
20 Parsons relied on the Supreme Court’s findings in Helling, Farmer, and Brown v. Plata, 21 563 U.S. 493 (2011), as well as prior Ninth Circuit precedents, and it noted that these courts 22 asked “only whether the plaintiffs were exposed to a substantial risk of harm to which 23 prison officials were deliberately indifferent,” while, at the same time, they recognized that 24 “many inmates can simultaneously be endangered by a single policy.” Parsons, 754 F.3d 25 at 678. As relevant here, the cases upon which Parsons relied involved prisoners’ alleged 26 exposures to several different policy- and practice-based risks to prisoners’ health and 27 safety. Helling dealt with unsafe drinking water; Graves v. Arpaio, 623 F.3d 1043, 1049 28 (9th Cir. 2010) dealt with heat exposure; Wallis v. Baldwin, 70 F.3d 1074, 1076 (9th Cir.

1 1995) dealt with asbestos exposure; and Hoptowit v. Spellman, 753 F.2d 779, 783–84 (9th
2 Cir.1985) dealt with substandard fire prevention. Relying on these and other precedents, 3 Parsons affirmed that,

4 although a presently existing risk may ultimately result in 5 different future harm for different inmates—ranging from no
6 harm at all to death—every inmate suffers exactly the same 7 constitutional injury when he is exposed to a single . . . policy 8 or practice that creates a substantial risk of serious harm.

8 754 F.3d at 678 (emphasis added).

9 Here, the proper inquiry relative to Plaintiffs’ Eighth and Fourteenth Amendment
10 and ADA/Section 504 claims is not whether each prospective class member can show 11 actual harm from Defendants’ policies, but whether each of them, by virtue of their 12 common confinement at MCSO, faces a substantial risk of contracting COVID-19 and 13 suffering serious harm as a result. Cf. Parsons, 754 F.3d at 679 (“While no inmate can 14 know in advance whether he will receive adequate and timely care in the event that he falls 15 ill or is injured, or know exactly what form of harm he will suffer . . . , every single inmate 16 has allegedly been placed at substantial risk of future harm due to the general 17 unavailability of constitutionally adequate care.”) (emphasis added); see also B.K. by next 18 friend Tinsley v. Snyder, 922 F.3d 957, 971 (9th Cir. 2019) (“The plaintiffs have not 19 brought a concatenation of individual claims that must be redressed through individual 20 injunctions; they have brought unified claims that ‘a specified set of centralized . . . policies 21 and practices . . .’ have placed them at a substantial risk of harm.”) (internal citation 22 omitted).

23 Defendants also take issue with the unsworn Declarations of the proposed class 24 members both as insufficiently numerous and because they contain “inadmissible hearsay” 25 about what the declarant allegedly heard someone else say and anecdotes of isolated or 26 sporadic instances of unknown inmates or officers not following MCSO’s protocols. (Doc.
27 53 at 12.) The Declarations from each of the named Plaintiffs attest to the alleged 28 constitutionally deficient conditions in the MCSO jails, including a lack of testing for 1 COVID-19; a lack of medical care for those exhibiting symptoms or testing positive for 2 COVID-19; a lack of social distancing in shared housing facilities, recreation, medical, and 3 food lines; and a lack of personal protective equipment, hygiene and proper cleaning 4 supplies. (See, generally, Doc. 8 Exs. 1-15; Doc. 12; Doc. 41 Exs. 1-11.) In addition, 5 Plaintiffs have produced the Declarations of Dr. Robert L. Cohen, M.D., an internist with 6 over 30 years' experience in correctional healthcare, including 5 years as Director of the 7 Montefiore Rikers Island Health Services, 17 years as representative of the American 8 Public Health Association on the Board of the National Commission for Correctional 9 Health Care, and as a federal court monitor overseeing efforts to improve medical care for 10 incarcerated people in Florida, Ohio, New York, who opines on MCSO's response to the 11 COVID-19 outbreak in MCSO jails and additional steps that should be taken immediately

12 to reduce the risk posed by COVID-19. (Doc. 8 Ex. 15; Doc. 12 at 5-85.)

13 Defendants' comment that the Declarations are unsworn is not a reason to discount 14 this evidence for purposes of class certification. As noted, a motion for class certification 15 is not an opportunity to hold "a dress rehearsal for the trial on the merits." Messner, 669 16 F.3d at 811; Unknown Parties, 163 F. Supp. 3d at 636 (citation omitted). Here, the 17 Declarations of the named Plaintiffs were taken by Plaintiffs' counsel over the phone and 18 counsel certified in each instance that they had reviewed the information over the phone or 19 by video visit with each respective Declarant, who then "certified that the information 20 contained in this declaration was true and correct to the best of [his or her] knowledge."
21 (See Doc. 8, Exs. 1-14.) Moreover, in a similar action in this District, this Court rejected 22 the habeas respondents' contention that prisoner declarations "taken via telephone due to 23 the unavailability of in-person visits to detainees as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic"
24 should be excluded. See Urdaneta v. Keeton, No. CV-20-00654-PHX-SPL (JFM), 2020
25 WL 2319980, at *5 (D. Ariz. May 11, 2020).

26 As to Defendants' hearsay argument, to the extent the Declarations contain 27 statements from MCSO officers or employees, they are likely to be admissions by party 28 opponents and thus not hearsay. Moreover, the Declarations primarily contain Plaintiffs'

1 first-hand accounts of the alleged policies, practices and overall living conditions at MCSO 2 jails and are undoubtedly among the most probative evidence in this action.

3 The Declarations of the named Plaintiffs regarding the relevant living conditions in 4 MCSO's jails, combined with Dr. Cohen's expert opinion on the substantial risks of 5 spreading COVID-19 associated with those conditions, are sufficient to support that the 6 policies and practices of Defendants at MCSO's jails are deliberately indifferent to a 7 substantial risk of serious harm to the inmates and/or in violation of their rights under the 8 ADA and RA. Accordingly, the Court finds that Plaintiffs have established commonality 9 for the proposed classes and subclasses.

10 C. Typicality

11 "The typicality requirement looks to whether the claims of the class representatives 12 [are] typical of those of the class, and [is] satisfied when each class member's claim arises 13 from the same course of events, and each class member makes similar legal arguments to 14 prove the defendant's liability." Rodriguez, 591 F.3d at 1124 (internal citations and 15 quotations omitted). "Like the commonality requirement, the typicality requirement is 16 'permissive' and requires only that the representative's claims are reasonably co-extensive 17 with those of absent class members; they need not be substantially identical." Id. (internal 18 citations and quotations omitted).

19 Plaintiffs argue that each of the named Plaintiffs "assert substantively identical 20 claims that arise from the same failure by Defendants to adequately implement social 21 distancing and other appropriate health and safety measures" at the MCSO jails in response 22 to COVID-19 and that each of the named Plaintiffs is "subject to similar conditions of 23 confinement that present a significant yet avoidable risk of serious illness and death from 24 contracting COVID-19." (Doc. 11 at 17.)

25 Defendants combine their analysis of the typicality and adequacy factors in their 26 Response. (See Doc. 53 at 6-9.) They argue that Plaintiff Reason is not a member of any 27 Class or Subclass, that Plaintiffs Fenty, Stepter, and Scroggins are not typical or adequate 28

1 representatives of the Pretrial subclasses, and that none of the Plaintiffs have exhausted
2 available remedies. (Id.)

3 1. Pretrial Class and Subclasses

4 Plaintiffs seek to have Fenty, Stepter, Crough, Scroggins, Perez and Ochoa represent 5 the Pretrial Class and to have Fenty, Stepter, Crough, and Scroggins additionally represent 6 Pretrial Medically Vulnerable and Disability Subclasses. (Doc. 11 at 7-8, 10.)

7 Defendants do not dispute that Fenty, Stepter, Crough, Scroggins, Perez and Ochoa 8 are typical representatives of the Pretrial Class. Therefore, the Court finds that these six 9 Plaintiffs are typical of the Pretrial Class. Defendants do argue that Fenty, Stepter, and 10 Scroggins are not typical or adequate representatives of the Pretrial subclasses. (Doc. 53 11 at 8-9.) They argue that while Fenty, Stepter, and Scroggins meet Plaintiffs' definition of 12 "medically vulnerable," they do not meet the CDC guidelines of who is at most risk of a 13 severe illness from COVID-19 based on their age and/or alleged medical conditions and 14 so are not typical of the Pretrial Subclass claims and are inadequate class representatives.⁶
15 (Doc. 53 at 8-9.) Defendants contend that only Crough's allegation that he is 55 and suffers 16 COPD puts him "at risk" of a severe illness from COVID-19, but that Fenty, Stepter and 17 Scroggins only allege medical issues where they "might be at increased risk" for a severe 18 illness from COVID-19. (Id. at 9.)

19 Plaintiffs reply that Defendants do not directly challenge Plaintiffs' definition of 20 "medically vulnerable," but instead have supplied their own definition of "medically 21 vulnerable," thereby implicitly conceding that the definition Plaintiffs have requested 22 applies to Fenty, Stepter, and Scroggins. (Doc. 62 at 14.) Plaintiffs cite to Dr. Cohen's 23 Declaration in which he explains that the CDC's distinction between those medical 24 conditions that cause an increased risk of severed illness or death from COVID-19 and 25 those that "might" cause an increased risk "is based on the quality and quantity of data

26
27 ⁶ Plaintiffs' define "medically vulnerable" as those "aged 50 years or older or [who] 28 have medical conditions that place them at heightened risk of severe illness or death from COVID-19," such as lung disease, heart disease, chronic liver or kidney disease, diabetes, hypertension, compromised immune systems, blood disorders, developmental disability, severe obesity, and/or moderate to severe asthma. (Doc. 11 at 5.)

1 currently available in a rapidly shifting environment.” (Id., citing Cohen Decl. ¶ 15 (Doc.
2 41, Ex. 11).) Cohen states that “given the constant evolution of science’s understanding of 3 COVID-19, people with medical conditions on either [CDC] list should be deemed 4 medically vulnerable” and that the “CDC’s own data strongly suggests the increased risk 5 from COVID-19 faced by those with chronic conditions in the second category.” (Id., 6 citing Cohen Decl. ¶ 15.)

7 Plaintiffs allege that Fenty is 48 years old and has stage 2 hypertension, adjustment 8 disorder with anxiety, PTSD, and chest pain; Stepter is 61 and has chronic respiratory 9 problems that result in difficult breathing, requires oxygen treatments to clear his lungs, 10 and has high blood pressure, Crough is 55 and has a heart condition, COPD, hepatitis, and 11 chest pain caused by stable angina; and Scroggins is 44 and has asthma. Defendants do 12 not argue that these Plaintiffs do not meet Plaintiffs’ definitions of the medically vulnerable 13 and disability subclasses or that Plaintiff’s definitions are inappropriate. The Court 14 therefore finds that Fenty, Stepter, Crough and Scroggins are adequate representatives of 15 the Pretrial Medically Vulnerable and Disability Subclasses.

16 2. Post-Conviction Class and Subclasses

17 Plaintiffs seek to have Reason, Tequida, and Avenenti represent the Post-Conviction 18 class and for Reason and Tequida to represent the Post-Conviction Medically Vulnerable 19 and Disability Subclasses. (Doc. 11 at 9-10.)

20 Defendants argue that Plaintiff Reason may not proceed as a class representative at 21 all because his claims became moot before class certification and Plaintiffs may not 22 substitute him with another class representative. (Doc. 53 at 7.) Defendants previously 23 asserted in response to Plaintiffs’ motion for injunctive relief that Reason was released
24 from custody on July 11, 2020. (Doc. 28 at 36.)

25 The fact that Plaintiff Reason has been released is irrelevant because Defendants do 26 not dispute the adequacy or typicality of Tequida or Avenenti in representing the Post-27 Conviction Class and Tequida in representing the Post-Conviction Subclasses. Thus, 28 Tequida and Avenenti are typical of the Post-Conviction Class and Tequida is typical of 1 the Post-Conviction Subclasses and they may adequately represent those classes and 2 subclasses.

3 3. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

4 Defendants also argue that Plaintiffs are not typical and adequate class 5 representative because they have not exhausted available administrative remedies before 6 bringing their claims and are therefore precluded from representing the classes and 7 subclasses. (Doc. 53 at 9.)

8 Plaintiffs respond that Defendants' exhaustion argument is inappropriate, they do 9 not provide any authority holding that their affirmative defense is relevant to the typicality 10 or adequacy analysis under Rule 23, and this affirmative defense does not bar class
11 certification. (Doc. 62 at 12.)

12 Defendants raised the issue of exhaustion of administrative remedies in their prior 13 Motion to Dismiss. (Doc. 28.) In the Court's August 14, 2020 Order, the Court rejected 14 this argument and Defendants' evidence because consideration of this evidence would 15 require the Court to go beyond the face of the Complaint, and the Court declined to convert 16 Defendants' Motion to Dismiss into one for summary judgment. (Doc. 52 at 7.) The Court 17 noted that Defendants may renew their exhaustion argument in a properly supported 18 summary judgment motion. (Id.) Defendants filed their Response to Plaintiff's Motion 19 for Class Certification (Doc. 53) the same day the Court issued its Order on Defendants' 20 Motion to Dismiss, and Defendants presumably did not have the benefit of the Court's 21 analysis of the exhaustion argument. Defendants have presented no authority to support 22 that it is appropriate to address exhaustion at the class certification stage. Therefore, 23 Defendants' current exhaustion argument is without merit, but Defendants may renew the 24 argument in a properly supported summary judgment motion.

25 D. Adequacy of Representation

26 Rule 23(a)(4) requires that class representatives fairly and adequately represent the 27 interests of the entire class. "This factor requires: (1) that the proposed representative 28 Plaintiffs do not have conflicts of interest with the proposed class, and (2) that Plaintiffs

1 are represented by qualified and competent counsel.” Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 603
2 F.3d 571, 614 (9th Cir. 2010) (rev’d on other grounds by 564 U.S. 338); see also Rodriguez,
3 591 F.3d at 1125 (“Whether the class representatives satisfy the adequacy requirement 4 depends on the qualifications of counsel for the representatives, an absence of antagonism, 5 a sharing of interests between representatives and absentees, and the unlikelihood that the 6 suit is collusive.”) (internal citations and quotations omitted).

7 The Supreme Court has found that commonality and typicality also relate to a 8 representative’s adequacy. See Gen. Tel. Co., 457 U.S. at 157 n.13. Defendants do not 9 make any specific argument related to adequacy, and the Court has already determined that 10 Plaintiffs have satisfied the commonality and typicality factors. As to Plaintiffs’ counsel, 11 Plaintiffs assert that class counsel are attorneys from the ACLU and the law firms of 12 Dechert, LLP and Stinson, LLP and have “extensive relevant experience to litigate this 13 matter to completion,” and have either participated as class counsel or have extensive 14 subject-matter expertise in civil rights cases, including in other cases related to COVID-19 15 in the detention context. (Doc. 11 at 18.) They further assert that the individually named 16 Plaintiffs have the requisite personal interest in the outcome of this case that they share 17 with all class member and will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the proposed 18 classes. (Id. at 18-19.) Accordingly, the Court finds the adequacy requirement is satisfied.

19 V. Rule 23(b)(2) Analysis

20 To obtain class certification, Plaintiffs must also satisfy one of the requirements set 21 forth in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 23(b). Plaintiffs claim that they meet the 22 requirements under Rule 23(b)(2), which states that “the party opposing the class has acted 23 or refused to act on grounds that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief 24 or corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting the class as a whole.” Fed. R.
25 Civ. P. 23(b)(2).⁷

26
27 ⁷ Plaintiffs also argue, in the alternative, that the proposed classes satisfy Rule 28 23(b)(1) “because requiring hundreds of individual class members to prosecute separate actions on the same claims would create a significant risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendants.”
(Doc. 11 at 19 n.8.)

1 Plaintiffs argue there can be no reasonable dispute that this action falls squarely
2 within Rule 23(b)(2) because courts “have repeatedly invoked Rule 23(b)(2) to certify
3 classes of inmates seeking declaratory and injunctive relief for alleged widespread Eighth 4 Amendment violations in prison systems.” (Doc. 11 at 19 (quoting Parsons, 754 F.3d at 5 686).) Plaintiffs also cite to Rodriguez, which held that the requirements of Rule 23(b)(2) 6 were met when “class members complain of a pattern or practice that is generally 7 applicable to the class as a whole” and when “class members seek uniform relief from a 8 practice applicable to all of them.” 591 F.3d at 1125-26. Plaintiffs argue that those 9 requirements are easily satisfied here because Defendants have subjected all proposed class 10 members to the same unconstitutional policies or practices that expose Plaintiffs to an 11 unreasonable risk of serious harm and the injunctive relief requested by Plaintiff is 12 appropriate for each class as a whole. (Doc. 11 at 19.)

13 The only specific argument Defendants make regarding Rule 23(b)(2) is that 14 commonality and/or Rule 23(b)(2) are lacking because the Court would need to determine 15 whether each class member can be released into a situation that does not place them or the 16 general public at a heightened risk of contracting COVID-19, and, because Plaintiffs are 17 each held under different criminal statutes, the considerations regarding their release vary 18 from one inmate to another. (Doc. 53 at 16-17.)

19 The only class for which Plaintiffs seek release are the members of the Pretrial 20 Medically Vulnerable and Pretrial Disability Subclasses who are incarcerated “solely due 21 to their inability to afford a financial condition of release, or whose release Defendants do 22 not object to[.]” (Doc. 1 at 48 ¶ c.) Plaintiffs further request injunctive relief and/or writ 23 of habeas corpus “imposing a process—to be determined by the Court—to consider the 24 release or enlargement of all remaining Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass and Pretrial 25 Disability Subclass members not released pursuant to Paragraph c within two weeks, and 26 members of the Post-Conviction Medically Vulnerable Subclass” using such factors as the 27 inmate’s risk of flight or danger to others, whether that risk is outweighed by the threat to 28

1 the inmate's health and safety posed by their exposure to COVID-19 in the MCSO jails,
2 and the length remaining on a convicted inmate's sentence. (Id. ¶ d.)

3 For purposes of Rule 23(b)(2), what matters is that a pattern of alleged violations 4 can be remedied for all putative class members by the same form of injunctive relief.
5 Plaintiffs have met that requirement here by seeking a class-wide process for determining 6 who is entitled to release, and this process will apply across the board to the relevant class 7 members and thereby facilitate the ease of determining release.

8 Plaintiffs have also satisfied Rule 23(b)(2) for the reasons already discussed with 9 respect to commonality. For each proposed class and subclass, Plaintiffs have alleged that 10 Defendants have failed to take constitutionally adequate measures to prevent the spread of 11 COVID-19, creating a substantial risk of infection for all class members in MCSO jails "on 12 grounds that apply generally to the class." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2). Further, in seeking to 13 remedy the conditions of confinement for all class members, Plaintiffs have sought "final 14 injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief [that] is appropriate respecting the 15 class[es and subclasses] as a whole." Id.

16 VI. Habeas Claim

17 In their Fourth Claim for Relief, Plaintiffs assert a habeas corpus claim pursuant to 18 28 U.S.C. § 2241 on behalf of all Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass members for 19 alleged Fourteenth Amendment violations. (Doc. 1 at 42-43.) Plaintiffs allege that the 20 continued confinement of this subclass "is punitive, not rationally related to a legitimate 21 purpose, and/or excessive in relation to any legitimate purpose, in addition to being 22 objectively deliberately indifferent." (Id. ¶ 182.) Plaintiffs further allege that "there are 23 no conditions of confinement that will adequately protect members of the Pretrial 24 Medically Vulnerable Subclass from the risk of infection, serious injury and death from 25 COVID-19." (Id. ¶ 184.) And they contend that "[t]he only way to [] to remove the 26 unacceptable risk posed to the Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass by COVID-19 is to 27 remove these class members from the jail via release or enlargement." (Id. ¶ 188.) As 28 previously noted, Plaintiffs seek the immediate release of all members of the Pretrial

1 Medically Vulnerable Subclass who remain incarcerated solely because they cannot afford 2 a financial condition of release or whose release Defendants do not object to and for a 3 process to consider the release or enlargement of the remaining Pretrial Medically 4 Vulnerable and Disability Subclass members. (Id. at 48.)

5 Defendants argue that the Court should not certify the habeas petition “for all the 6 reasons that the underlying constitutional and statutory claims should not be certified.” 7 (Doc. 53 at 17-18.) Defendants assert that the Supreme Court “has never addressed 8 whether habeas relief can be pursued in a class action” but that such actions are “ordinarily 9 disfavored.” (Id. at 17 (quoting Jennings v. Rodriguez, 138 S.Ct. 830, 858 n.7 (2018) 10 (Thomas, J., concurring) and citing Rodriguez v. Hayes, 591 F.3d 1104, 1117 (9th Cir.
11 2010)).)

12 Plaintiffs reply that they are seeking habeas relief on behalf of the Pretrial Medically 13 Vulnerable Subclass “in connection with a single claim predicated on a single set of facts” 14 and that the Ninth Circuit has permitted habeas relief on a class-wide basis. (Doc. 62 at 15 17-18, citing Cox v. McCarthy, 829 F.2d 800, 804 (9th Cir. 1987) (holding that “a class 16 action may lie in habeas corpus”) and Mead v. Parker, 464 F.2d 1108, 1112-13 (9th Cir.
17 1972) (holding that a class action in habeas corpus may be appropriate “where the relief 18 sought can be of immediate benefit to a large and amorphous group”).)

19 “Courts are split as to whether claims by prisoners in light of the COVID-19 20 pandemic are challenges to the fact or duration of confinement properly brought as a habeas 21 claim under Section 2241, or challenges to the conditions of confinement which fall outside 22 the core of habeas corpus.” Torres, 2020 WL 4197285, at *6 (citing cases). In Torres, the 23 district court concluded that the plaintiffs/petitioners properly asserted a § 2241 habeas 24 claim challenging the fact of their confinement because the petitioners there asserted that 25 there was “no set of conditions of confinement that could be constitutional.” Id. at *7.
26 Likewise, here, Plaintiffs have alleged that “there are no conditions of confinement that 27 will adequately protect members of the Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass from the 28 risk of infection, serious injury and death from COVID-19.” (Doc. 1 ¶ 184.) Thus, the

1 Court concludes that Plaintiffs have properly asserted a habeas claim in their Fourth Claim 2 for Relief pursuant to § 2241 challenging the fact of their confinement.

3 VII. Conclusion

4 Because the requirements for class certification under Federal Rules of Civil 5 Procedure 23(a) and 23(b) are met, the Court will grant Plaintiffs Motion for Class 6 Certification and certify the two proposed classes and four subclasses in this action.

7 IT IS ORDERED:

8 (1) The reference to the Magistrate Judge is withdrawn as to Plaintiffs' Motion 9 for Class Certification (Doc. 11) and the Motion is granted.

10 (2) The following Classes and Subclasses are certified pursuant to Rule 23:

11 (a) The Pretrial Class, defined as

12 All current and future persons held by Defendants in pretrial
13 detention at the five jails operated by the Maricopa County
14 Sheriff's Office, known as the 4th Avenue, Saguardo, Estrella, 15 Lower Buckeye, and Towers jails (together, the "Maricopa County jails").

16 Within the Pretrial Class are two Subclasses:

17 (1) Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass, defined as

18 Members of the Pretrial Class who are aged 50 years or 19 older or who have medical conditions that place them at 20 heightened risk of severe illness or death from COVID-21 19 such as lung disease, heart disease, chronic liver or 22 kidney disease (including hepatitis and dialysis 23 patients), diabetes, hypertension, compromised immune 24 systems (such as from cancer, HIV, or autoimmune disease), blood disorders (including sickle cell disease), developmental disability, severe obesity, and/or moderate to severe asthma.

25 (2) Pretrial Disability Subclass defined as

26 All current and future pretrial detainees who are people 27 with disabilities as defined under the Americans with 28 Disabilities Act (ADA) and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act ("Section 504"), and whose disabilities put them at increased risk of serious illness or death if they contract COVID-19. The Pretrial Disability Subclass includes all members of the Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass except those vulnerable solely on the basis of age or obesity.

(b) The Post-Conviction Class, defined as

All current and future persons held by Defendants in post-conviction detention at the Maricopa County jails.

Within the Post-Conviction Class are two Subclasses:

(1) Post-Conviction Medically Vulnerable Subclass defined as Members of the Post-Conviction Class who are aged 50 years or older or who have medical conditions that place them at heightened risk of severe illness or death from COVID-19 such as lung disease, heart disease, chronic liver or kidney disease (including hepatitis and dialysis patients), diabetes, hypertension, compromised immune systems (such as from cancer, HIV, or autoimmune disease), blood disorders (including sickle cell disease), developmental disability, severe obesity, and/or moderate to severe asthma.

(2) Post-Conviction Disability Subclass defined as

All current and future post-conviction detainees who are people with disabilities as defined under the ADA and Section 504, and whose disabilities put them at increased risk of serious illness or death if they contract COVID-19. The Post-Conviction Disability Subclass includes all members of the Post-Conviction Medically Vulnerable Subclass except those vulnerable solely on the basis of age or obesity.

(3) Named Plaintiffs Fenty, Stepter, Crough, Scroggins, Perez, and Ochoa are appointed as representatives of the Pretrial Class. Plaintiffs Fenty, Stepter, Crough, and Scroggins are additionally appointed as representatives of the Pretrial Medically Vulnerable Subclass and the Pretrial Disability Subclass.

1 (4) Named Plaintiffs Tequida and Avenenti are appointed as representatives of 2 the Post-Conviction Class. Plaintiff Tequida is additionally appointed as representative
3 of the Post-Conviction Medically Vulnerable Subclass and the Post-Conviction Disability 4 Subclass.
